

The i have a voice traveling gallery of Chicago is coming to the Mahoning Valley. Hosted by the Down Syndrome Association of the Valley.

During late July and August, the gallery will be featured at the Eastwood Mall, the Shops at Boardman Park for the Buddy Walk of the Valley and Southern Park Mall.

The i have a voice traveling gallery is a collection of beautifully shot portraits of children and adults with Down syndrome that captures their wisdom, their strength, their very essence.

The portraits, paired with quotations, allows audiences to get to know these unique and inspiring individuals. Not at a surface level, but more deeply. A glimpse beyond the diagnosis, and into their souls.

Created by Gigi's Playhouse and photographer Thomas Balsamo, the gallery made its Chicago debut in April 2008. But that is only where their stories begin.

A gallery debut for DSAV members, the media and other special guests will take place in late July at the Eastwood Mall.

Invitation to follow.
